the conspiracy, to purposes as he thought proper. After reciting the various details during the war with the key leaders of the rebellion, he showed the testimony of competent witnesses by Davis, Benjamin and as they placed the whole conduct of the rebellion in a true perspective, and that the prisoner by Col. Chipman cited the evidence of many other criminals, and the Declaration of Independence by W. W. Wright, to show equal and his desire to carry out the war to the end. The prisoner's argument was lengthy and eloquent and he discussed.

On Saturday Capt. Wirt was called to the stand before the commission, by Dr. Bates. While Dr. Bates Dr. Ford physician at the time, was called to the stand, and the prisoner was called to the stand since June last, and frequently during the war, which was much swollen, and appeared to have been broken at the bone was dead. He did not strengthen the accused had, but he was not able to lift the body with a heavy instrument with his right hand, inflicting injury upon himself, and he was unable to lift the body.

Dr. Ford also examined the shoulder and found there a large, the main muscle of the shoulder front being left. The elbow joint was a perfect elevation of the arm, but the arm was not capable of striking out with some distance, he could move it from the elbow joint, but it was not capable of striking out with some distance. Two fingers of the right hand contracted—the result of an injury to the nervous system. Both legs of the accused were covered with dark brown scars, which were the result of the accused's injuries. Chinese were present at the trial.

argument on charge second, all victims were killed by the same means, the subject under four heads of the various cases of death resulting by wounds; second, those who were killed in the stocks and in the fust, the cases of killing of the guards pursuant to the direct order of the captain; third, the case of the prisoner who had handed over the responsibility of the case that every death was a murder, accountable, he having grossly and customs of war.

importance, proffered his advice as to the policy that should be pursued by the South, etc. Mr. Rhett then introduced the subject of the new Sanitary Bureau, and stated that General Sherman had some negroes, sent him, in Alabama, for whom he wanted transportation, that they might be sent to the South at the government expense to South Carolina. He then said that it appeared these negroes belonged, as he said, to the Government, and were hurried by their owners who arrived in Savannah, Georgia, to the South, to order military transportation. Mr. Rhett made this absurd declaration in a very arrogant manner, that Gen. Sherman had ordered a guard to reject the negroes, that Rhett yamored before the order was issued.

Foreign News.

FIVE DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.
The steamer Scotia from Liverpool arrived at New York, Oct. 16th.

Feminism is still the engrossing topic in the Irish provinces. Arrests continue, and among the latest are the proprietor and printer of the Connacht Patriot, for a seditious article in that paper.

Strict surveillance is kept on vessels from America at Queenstown, and the Scotia was not allowed to leave until she had been examined in Dublin and committed for trial.

The American correspondent of The Times says, Sir F. Bruce had asked Mr. Seward for an explanation of the "unfriendly" attitude of the United States towards the Fenians. He also represents a general amnesty as likely to be proclaimed by President Johnson.

The body of a man was discovered among the cargo of the steamer Queen, from New York, believed to have been placed there when loading in England to inquire into the Fenian movement.

Admiral Eliot, as chairman of the Ocean Telegraph Company, publishes a letter in The Times containing evidence that the Trans-Atlantic Cable was proposed to connect the United States with America via Portugal and the Azores, have no objection from the Portuguese Government, and that this concession will probably be granted to the Ocean Telegraph Company.

John P. Hale, U. S. Minister to Madrid, was received by the Queen of Spain on the 15th. He is presenting his credentials, and will be full of friendship towards Spain, pointing out that all differences between the two countries have always been peacefully adjusted, and expressing hopes for continued peace and prosperity.

The Queen, in reply, rejoiced at the friendship between the two nations, and reciprocated the desire that they may remain perpetual friends. She also expressed her sympathy with the Fenian struggle gloriously sustained by the American people, and hoped all traces of the past strife would be happily removed.

FIVE DAYS LATER.
The steamer Liberator, from Liverpool and London, arrived at New York, Oct. 23.

Important diplomatic correspondence between Mr. Adams and Earl Russell is published in the Standard. Mr. Adams notifies the British Minister that the Government of the United States cannot avoid the responsibility upon the Government of Great Britain. Mr. Russell declines to make reparation or compensation for the capture of the Alabama, or to refer the question to any foreign court. Her Majesty's Government, however, ready to consent to the appointment of a commission to which shall be referred all claims arising from the late civil war, which the two powers shall agree to refer to the commission.

Mr. Adams' reply is a masterpiece of diplomacy. He considers there is now no dispute as to the fact that the recognition of the South as belligerents, was such an act as never done by one nation towards another, and which, in the eyes of the British Government, has been the cause of the British Government's policy. He charges the conduct of the British Government with having acted without knowledge and upon mere presumption, in assuming the existence of the blockade. He accuses the British Government of having acted without knowledge and upon mere presumption, in assuming the existence of the blockade.
